The Phorciades, also known as the "Graien", are three sister witches who share the same eye and tooth in Greek mythology. Their names of Deino, Enyo, and Pemphredo, respectively mean "malice", "violence", and "terror". They appear in the magic-filled second act of Goethe's "Faust". From mythology to games, whenever they appear, there is almost always the situation in which their eyes are stolen.

THE DESIGN OF THE SLEEVES AS ENVISIONED IN THE BEGINNING STAGES

Mephistopheles didn't actually start off with its hands concealed. Its hands were completely displayed in the beginning, but as we went further and designed its clothes, we discovered that no matter how we designed its sleeves, the common factor was that they were very long. Since it was difficult to see the hands, we decided to maintain the mysterious aura and completely conceal everything within the sleeves. So whether there are hands inside or not, or even something else, we leave it to everyone's imagination.

The boots are heelless shoes that some also call "demon heels" or "horse heels".
They're also known as "beast-hoof boots" or "horse-hoof boots" in Chinese.

The dedication for this game's art is really outstanding. No wonder it left a huge impression in me when I played the game for the first time.

Really worth your money.. I hope IPO will make a new game,one day...
